Allan Frost produced a variety of work for The Tudor Mint over a period of almost 10 years, including the first 21 issues of the Methtintdour Times. During that time he wrote a considerable number of stories to give life and meaning to figurines in the Myth & Magic Collection.

He also helped with the organisation of the Collectors' Club's annual Extravaganzas and invented The Game of Strax, played by wizards to improve their spell-casting techniques.

His fantasy novel, The Stracyl of Unity, the Official Handbook to the Myth & Magic Collection and the earliest issues of the Methtintdour Times (all richly illustrated) are now out of print, which is why Allan has produced this compilation.

As well as stories created especially for the Methtintdour Times, this CD (with over 550 pages) also includes some hitherto unpublished tales. Relative newcomers to the Collection can discover its early history, how models were made (and why they were altered) as well as an astounding amount of additional information.

Allan is a freelance researcher, author, publisher and lecturer with a special interest in the history of his home town of Wellington in Shropshire, England.
